

The interviewee must demonstrate a basic understanding of English.

As part of the naturalization process, they must pass a two-part naturalization test that consists of:

- An English language test that evaluates their reading, writing, and speaking skills
- A civics test that evaluates their knowledge of U.S. history and government

This interview should take about 20 minutes.

Part 1: English Language Test

**The Officer is looking for basic comprehension of the small talk and questions being asked.*

Interviewee waits in lobby.

Interviewer walks out and calls the person's name.

Interviewer introduces self: Hello, I'm Officer _____.

Interviewer asks for identification.

Interviewer walks the interviewee down the hall and makes small talk:

Possible topics:

- How did you get here? (Drive, train, bus, got a ride)
- How was the traffic?
- Weather
- How was your week / weekend?

Interviewer spends a few minutes 'reviewing' their N-400 Form in front of the interviewee and asks a few questions. (See the N-400 Form later in this packet to flip through in front of interviewee)

You can pick any section of this form to ask about.

Here are some ideas to 'review':

- Part 5: what is your address? (If they have a PO Box, you can dig a little deeper, what is your mailing address or what is your physical address?)

Option - you can ask the interviewee to write their name and address (for the writing portion of this exam)

- Part 11: children. (How many? What grades are they in? If they are grown and out of the house where do they live (cities)?)

- Part 12, questions 45-50.

Reading and writing portion of the exam

For the reading portion: show the interviewee any of the following sentences and ask them to read aloud. (3 sentences)

For the writing portion: read aloud any of the following sentences and ask them to write the sentence down. (3 sentences)
